

Tomplay – interactive sheet music

Launch of the new Tomplay iPad application

With the release of a new iPad application, Tomplay transforms music learning and practicing into a unique experience.

The new Tomplay – interactive sheet music application for iPad contains over 1,000 interactive scores for 11 instruments. Thanks to contracts with several big music labels (Sony ATV, Walt Disney), the catalogue has been expanded to include many more pop and rock pieces as well as film music.

The application replaces the past iPad applications and complements the PC and Mac version, available since December 2015. The entire interface as well as the functionalities of the interactive sheet music have been improved to better respond to the needs of the musician.

The image shows an iPad displaying the Tomplay application interface. The screen shows a musical score for a piece titled 'Moderato' by 'Dimitri Chostakov'. The score is displayed in a clean, modern font with various musical notations. The iPad is tilted, and the background of the advertisement is a light blue gradient with floating musical notes and a pink circular button that says 'Try it for free'. The Tomplay logo, a pink musical note with a trail of dots, is prominently displayed in the center. Below the logo, the text reads 'Tomplay' in a large, elegant font. Underneath, a pink text box says 'With Tomplay interactive sheet music, transform your living room into a concert hall!'. At the bottom right, there is a black button with the Apple logo and the text 'Download on the App Store'.

What is Tomplay interactive sheet music?

Tomplay interactive sheet music offers all musicians an unprecedented experience: playing an instrument accompanied by other musicians, just like in a concert hall! Thanks to a unique technology, Tomplay interactive sheet music for tablets and computers caters to the level and needs of the user, making music learning easier, more fun and more effective. Tomplay interactive sheet music is used by more than 10,000 musicians worldwide.
